VILLA ELUDES YANKS;
FLEES FOR INTERIORPistol Charges and Artillery
Break Up Forces; One
Yank is Shot.

El Paso, Tex., June 18.—American troops that participated in the punitive expedition against the Villa rebels in and near Juarez last night and to-day were billeted in barracks and camps on the American side tonight after twenty-four hours of campaigning. Villa and his forces escaped to the interior.

Seven ragged Mexican prisoners were herded toward the Fort Bliss stockade by a detachment of the 5th Cavalry, while another cavalry detachment drove a herd of 100 captured Mexican horses and ponies to the remount station.

It was unofficially stated to-night at Fort Bliss that approximately fifty villa followers were killed.

One American of the 7th Cavalry Corp. Chigas, was shot through the lung by a Mexican rebel.

After crossing the night the cavalry column, supported by a battalion of the 82d Artillery, advanced and at daybreak began a scouting tour.

Capturis the seven prisoners before reaching the Villa camp, the cavalry was enabled to proceed, dismounted, to a short distance of the adobe headquarters when fighting was begun by the Americans standing in water up to their knees.

HILTON-SHIELDS

A very attractive wedding was that of Miss Elsie Elizabeth Hilton and Mr. Arthur Byron Shields, which was solemnized Wednesday evening, May 21, at nine o'clock at Lebanon Cumberland Presbyterian church. The Rev. T. T. Moore performed the ceremony in the presence of a large audience.

Mrs. R. W. Kittenger was her sisters Matron of Honor and Miss Bernice Moore the bride's niece was the flower girl. Mr. Shields had for his best man, Dr. R. W. Kittenger. The church was beautifully decorated in white Peonies, Mock Orange Blossoms, Roses and Myrtle. The bride and groom stood under a beautiful arch made of myrtle and orange blossoms. The wedding party entered to a wedding march played by Miss Myra Gary as during the ceremony, Morrisons Meditation was played. "I love you truly" was sung by Mrs. Grace Graves as the wedding party returned from the church.

"WHISTLING JACK" BACK FROM THE WAR.

"Whistling Jack" Collins, the mocking bird of Hayti, has returned from overseas. Jack has been sadly missed since he entered the service of Uncle Sam. Last summer he was the prince royal of the colored minstrels who furnished up music and his shrill mimicry of the birds of the air and beasts of the field resounded at twilight over the Hayti hills with a pleasing cadence that always made one take notice. But Jack was called and went to war and we waver the camps were made vocal with the sound of his minstrels. But now the war clouds have blown over and Jack has come back to Darkeytown and we hope to hear those notes of melody on our streets once more. Welcome home, Jack.

GERMANS ARE FAILING
BACK FROM RHINE ZONE

Coblenz.—The movement of war material by the Germans from territory beyond the occupied areas continues, according to German newspapers. The beginning of this withdrawal was made several weeks ago, when there was a hitch in peace negotiations. The withdrawal of troops from various sectors opposite the allies' bridgeheads is also reported.

Several days ago the removal of material from the Frankfort area began. The most of this material is going in the direction of Cassel, but there are no indications that it is being unloaded there, that city being on a line over which the Americans would advance should the allies be ordered to move further into Germany. Beyond the Coblenz bridgehead much war material has been withdrawn for a distance of more than sixty miles. In the Ruhr district the military retirement is virtually complete.

According to German newspapers industrial plants, banks and civilians east of the allies' bridgeheads are making preparations for eventualities in case allied forces move eastward. It is reported that schools have postponed examinations which were scheduled for this week.

CUMBERLAND CO. GETTING READY TO FIGHT STRIKE.

Louisville, Ky.—Developments in the last twenty-four hours of the proposed telephone strike due to begin Monday morning at 8 o'clock indicate the Cumberland Telephone company here is trying to solidify its forces to combat the proposed walkout.

Harry Henderson, business manager of the local branch of the Brotherhood of International Electrical Workers, said this morning: "We have final orders to strike Monday morning and the only orders we could receive now would be to revoke that order."

Miss Cecile Irvin, president of the Telephone Operators' union, said today she attended a meeting last night, but declined to give any information concerning the plans for the strike.

Seventy-five girls, operators, all said to be employed by the Cumberland company, met in the assembly room of the company and were addressed by D. F. Turnbull, local manager of the Bell company.

It was stated the meeting was called to consider whether non-union operators would walk out Monday with union operators in the event the strike is actually called. It was reported the operators decided to support the company.

In labor circles today it was reported the Cumberland people were offering girls $18 a week and all expenses to go to Atlanta and become operators.

AUTO TURNS ALMOST OVER

What came near being a serious accident occurred on the pike north of town Sunday afternoon when an auto in which several were riding turned over an embankment, on two wheels, and the bank had to be dug down before it could be gotten out. Mrs. Howard Ellis and her baby, of Hartford and her two brothers, John and Cokeley Taylor, of Mayo, were riding in the machine. In trying to go around a bad place in the road the car veered too much to one side and went over the embankment, hanging by two wheels, which was the only thing which kept the occupants from serious injuries. Mrs. Ellis sustained some painful bruises but the others were not injured.

TRACTION STRIKE
IN DETROIT ENDS

Detroit, Mich.—Detroit's traction tie up, effective since Saturday, came to an end early this evening when the striking carmen of the Detroit United Railways voted to accept an offer by the company of wage increases from forty-three, forty-six and forty-eight to fifty, fifty-five and sixty cents an hour. Then men asked an increase of twenty-seven cents. The carmen accepted the company's compromise offer after an all-day debate, a large number of the 2500 strikers favoring it.

Cause Friction Among Leaders

Washington, June 17.—Unless some action is taken in the near future to eliminate the friction and the working at cross purposes which now exists in the management of Republican publicity, it was admitted here to-day by leaders of the various factions of that party that the situation might result in disaster for Republicans in 1920. The center of the Republican publicity dispute is Johnson Bourne, former United States Senator from Oregon and now the president of the Republican Publicity Association.

The cause of the trouble is that while the Republican National Committee, through its own publicity agents, studiously is avoiding anything that would put the Republicans in the position of accepting the League of Nations controversy as a party issue, Mr. Bourne is issuing every day $100 worth of publicity to 2,000 Republican newspapers throughout the country, challenging the Democrats in the name of the Republican party to fight it out on that line in the campaign of 1920.

INSANE FROM FLU EFFECTS

A pathetic case of the effects of the flu was brought before us Monday when Miss Katie Muffett, daughter of Dud Muffett, of near Shreve, was tried and adjudged insane in the County Court here. Miss Muffett suffered a serious attack of the dreaded influenza last winter and had not fully recovered and last Thursday night she became violently insane and raved from that on Monday when she was taken to Hopkinsville. Her mental derangement was made more pathetic by reason of the fact that she is only twenty-two years of age.

While on trial she seemed possessed with the idea that she had received miraculous power to speak in tongues and this seemed to be her whole thought. She was taken to Hopkinsville Monday evening where she was committed to the western State Hospital for treatment.

ROCKPORT 12; CEN-

TRAL CITY 10

Rockport won a free hitting contest from Central City Sunday by the score of 12 to 10; Blades, for Rockport, pitched a good game but was given very bad support. He struck out eleven of the opposing batters, had three putouts and three assists and allowed only six hits one of which was a home run by Gray. Shorty Green was the hitting star of the day, getting a single, double and triple in five times up. Durrall, with the local team also got three hits one of which was a double, in five times up. Humphrey led the attack for Central City, with two singles, two base on balls, two runs, and three stolen bases. The score was:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

Rockport: 3 1 3 0 0 5 9 X

3 1 3 0 0 5 0 X

Central City: 5 1 0 0 0 0 0 2 2

The Batteries for Rockport were

Blades and Browning, for Central

City were J. Harris and B. Millard and Foley and Matthews.

RED RULE WILL BE ES-

TABILISHED OVER AUSTRIA

London.—Communist government will be proclaimed in Austria on Sunday with promise of immediate success, according to information in government circles here.

The best information indicates that about 40 per cent of the Austrian army is Bolshevik.

The Communists are expected quickly to align themselves with the Hungarian Communists, whose recent military successes are considered to have strengthened them.

The Austro-Hungarian situation as a whole is viewed here as decidedly serious.

BIG OIL AND MINERAL COMPANY INCORPORATEDHold Leases in Ohio County and Will Operate Here; Capitalized at $100,000

The Salt Lick Oil and Mineral company is the name of a corporation, articles for which were filed in the county clerk's office late Saturday afternoon. The proposed organization will hold leases covering about 1,000 acres in Ohio county, for the purpose of drilling for oil. As in the case of most organizations of this kind, much interest is manifest in the community covered by the holdings of the company. For ten years or more, the probability of the discovery of oil has been discussed in the neighborhood leased, and a few of the older citizens report that oil has been found on some of the farms held. At the present time, remnants of oil salt wells may be seen, some of which were abandoned long ago because production was interfered with by the appearance of oil—a commodity which formerly was not highly valued.

The Salt Lick Oil and Mineral company is being organized by Roscoe Holbrook, James Keeley and Wilbur K. Miller, each of whom own 50 shares of the par value of $100, and it is their intention to begin drilling as soon as contracts can be arranged with competent operators. The capital stock of the corporation is fixed at $100,000. The indebtedness is not to exceed $50,000.

The Ohio county field bids fair to rival some of the better known oil fields of Kentucky, paying wells already having been sunk there.

The company is to be conducted by the usual board of directors and officers, to be elected by the stockholders at a meeting to be held at an early date.—Owensboro Inquirer.

SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN

Work for the Home Service Fund of the Salvation Army will start promptly, in fact has already begun, an organization for the drive, with some of the best men and women of the county in charge having been perfected. News from the State Headquarters at Lexington, where Colonel I. Sobel is in charge of the State Campaign, is to the effect that the outlook for Kentucky going over the top is excellent and that this worthy organization will be given the needed funds to look after the wants of returned and returning soldiers as well as they looked after the fighting men at the front in Europe.

Sunday, June 22, will be Salvation Army Sunday in all the churches of Kentucky, the ministers having been asked to preach at that time on the work of the Army at home and what it did for the soldiers abroad. The next day, June 23, the drive for the Home Service Fund actually starts and it will be completed Monday, June 24. With the problems of establishing boozeless saloons where there is any demand for them, finding work for unemployed soldiers and others who may want work after the saloon has passed out, there will be plenty of use for the fund to be raised in this drive and Commander Evangeline Booth and her co-workers at the head of the Army are sufficient assurance that it will be properly expended.

The organization in this county is composed of the following well known men:

W. H. Baize, Chairman, Hartford, Ky.

Rev. A. D. Litchfield, Vice Chairman, Hartford, Ky.

A. D. Kirk, Treasurer, Hartford, Ky.

Walter Green and W. S. Tinsley,

Chairmen of Publicity, Hartford,

WOMEN FRANCE'S HOPE,
NOT THE POLITICIANS

France and all it means must be restored for the sake of civilization and it is the French women who must mainly do it, not the politicians, declares Ida M. Tarbell in the June number of the New Red Cross Magazine.

"Let the politicians do their best—or worst," the writer continues.

"It is not they that will live and save France. It has got to be done from the bottom, down where people live in love and labor. And it is the women who will play the chief part there. Their task in the peace which has come is not unlike that of the poilu in the war that is past. They come to this work with the most terrible handicaps."

The handicaps, Miss Tarbell finds are not merely the fact that France has been stripped of the flower of its manhood while thousands of others have come back from the war maimed for life, but also include the problems of employment. Many of the women who went into munition plants will not return to their old work, some because they have been rendered unfit, some because they have succumbed to the innumerable lures of Paris, some because there is not work for them. There is the principal rub. But, concludes the writer, it is the handicaps which force them to their big task.

CAPTIVE YANKS PRINTED
OWN 'BARBED WIRELESS'

Even the discomforts and actual hardships of a German prison camp failed to dishearten the American soldier and proof of this is that although handicapped by the fact that he had no printing press the irrepressible Yank prisoner succeeded in getting out one rollicking newspaper, the Rastatt "Barbed Wireless."

The armistice was declared soon after the advent of the first edition of the laboriously pencil-printed sheet and with the liberated Americans making their way toward home the paper made no second appearance. One soldier preserved the original copy, however, and several of its interesting pages are reproduced in the June number of the New Red Cross Magazine, in which also Frank Ward O'Malley tells of the brief but joyous career of the "greatest newspaper in captivity."

"One has no doubt that in time the 'Barbed Wireless' would have waxed more ambitious, perhaps even to the extent of adding a colored supplement 'printed' in beet marmalade," writes Mr. O'Malley.

"But one November day, when things were particularly dull within the enclosure, a most marvellous message arrived in camp a few minutes after the clock had struck one in the afternoon. The armistice had been signed! And, of equal importance, a paragraph of the document insisted that all Allied prisoners were to be liberated forthwith! There were cheers—a few; but chiefly the great joy that surged through the hearts of the caged young eagles of Rastatt took the form of bearhugs, wild caving, meaningless yelps of song, a scramble to pack up one's pitiful belongings with a hurly-burly of haste that indicated that every American mother's son in camp fully expected to board the 1:30 ferry for New York or never see home again."

U. S. MAY GRANT MOONEY AN-OTHER TRIAL, LABOR TOOK

Atlantic City, N. J., June 16.—Secretary of Labor Wilson, addressing the convention of the American Federation of Labor today, counseled organized labor not to participate in the proposed national strike for the liberation of Thomas Mooney, convicted of complicity in the San Francisco bomb plot.

He said the Government was investigating the evidence in the case in connection with the movement for a new trial for Mooney and that workingmen could not properly constitute themselves a jury to try him.

Secretary Wilson also referred to the "Bolsheviks of the United States" who, he said were allied with the I. W. W. and for whom the workingmen of America had no sympathy whatever when they understood the Bolshevik creed. Bolshevism, the secretary said, essentially cheated obligatory labor, or virtual slavery; and all working men had been fighting against slavery since the day of Moses.

THE VENEER OF THE YEARS

BY WALTER GREEP.

CHAPTER XIV

MERLIN GETS REVENGE

It was with comparative ease that the ex-reporter obtained a position in Benson City. The morning after his arrival in the little plateau City, having arranged for his board, he strolled out the principal street toward the suburbs, looking for the office of the Smelting Company. Every where he was impressed with the cleanliness and general beauty of the place. The shop windows, instead of being dust covered and dim as in Smithville, were spotless and shining and tastefully decorated, so that they presented a rather pleasing appearance. The sidewalks were well swept, the streets clean and sprinkled, and the vehicles did not make the lumbering noise as in the former town. Business seemed to be flourishing and everybody going about his own business.

At the far end of Main street, the last building in the row, stood the office of the Benson City Smelting Company. It was a commodious structure, built of pressed brick, freshly painted and to the young it presented a striking contrast to the dingy, ramshak barn-like office of the Smithville Company. Surely this was a reason for Benson City being more prosperous than Smithville, despite the big strikes that were continually being made in the vicinity of the latter. He entered the office and was at once greeted by the Proprietor, a jovial old fellow, and granted an interview. "What could I do for you?" he asked cordially.

"I am looking for a position," answered Merlin. "And I was told over in Smithville that you were in need of a Bookkeeper and I thought perhaps you would employ me."

"Smithville? Did you come from Smithville?" asked the old man eyeing him critically.

"Yes I have been there a year, but such year I hope I shall never spend again. I do not wish to be uncomplimentary to your neighbor City, but I believe that is the meanest place on the face of the earth."

The proprietor laughed. "Don't be afraid to speak what you think of Smithville here" he said. "It has a terribly tough reputation and just at present it and Benson City are at swords-point over a Railroad proposition."

"How is that?"

"Oh it is this way, you know we have a single line railroad and so have they. Well one line is not enough to accomodate the transportation at either place, so the Santa Fe Company agreed to run a special line from Denver and form a junction at either this town or Smithville. The proposition is: Which shows the largest and most enterprising populations at the end of two years gets the branch line. Just now we have it over them but on account of the find they may skin us yet."

"I should think not" said Merlin. "Smithville is not a fit place for respectable people to live."

"Of course not but people will go anywhere for money. I am sure of one thing, if Smithville gets the railroad my business will be gone."

"Don't you think a few articles in your home newspaper about the inside life of Smithville would help bring the tide this way?" asked the younger man, a new idea coming into his head.

"Certainly, but who is going to write them? There is no one in this town who was ever in Smithville more than an hour in his life."

"Why I can! I know the place from A to Z and can truthfully give it the black eye."

"Did you ever write any for the Newspapers?"

"Yes, considerable. I was chief reporter on the Sun over there for almost a year."

"Then you are the one to do it! Give me your hand on it, it is a peach of an idea." And Merlin grasped the extended hand.

"But about employing me? Do you think you could use me?"

"Oh yes but what are your qualifications? Did you ever study book keeping or short hand?"

"Yes, I studied the Commercial branches for two years, I can present my Diploma if you desire it."

"Oh, no! you needn't mind if you know anything about the business, as I think you do, you will be just the man I want. I would have made anybody else present a recommendation from his former employer, but as you came from Smithville and the business men of that place are not held in very high esteem by us, I will just take you as you are."

"And my salary?"

"Will be one hundred a month to start on with a chance of a raise the second year."

And so, the next day he took up his duties as bookkeeper for the Smelting Company. At first he found the work slightly difficult owing to the intricate arrangement of the account books, but because of his thorough knowledge of the work and his natural aptitude, he soon surmounted his difficulties and became perfectly familiar with the system. He often spent hours after his regular days work was ended puzzling over some little detail that would help him to more fully understand his work. This studious application soon attracted the attention of the proprietor who in turn spoke of it to the owners of the plant, and as a consequence Merlin's name was placed first on the list of those to be promoted at the end of the year. This was highly pleasing to him and caused him to take even a greater interest in his work than he had hitherto manifested.

But as the days wore on he did not forget the articles on Smithville he had promised his employer to write. He wanted revenge—his soul cried out for it, his wounded spirit clamored for it—revenge on Smithville. The place where he, lone and friendless had been buffeted by rough men, abused, and even beaten. The town was a blot on the face of the earth, and should it grow? should it enjoy greater prosperity and allow its wicked inhabitants more money to indulge their vices—cravings?—it "shouldn't" not—if he could help it. He could not take revenge on the barkeeper for he was dead—beaten to death by his drink crazed patrons. Merlin did not regret his death. The only qualm of conscience he felt in preparing his denunciation of Smithville was the fact that it would ruin the meager business of the old boarding house keeper. But he who links his fate with evil, must suffer with evil its damnation and he could not forego writing a word on his former host's account. If he did not wish to share in the town's loss let him leave it.

Late into the night he would write and search the dictionary, alternately, trying to find some words that would competently express his contempt for the town from which he had just come. But he failed. Nevertheless, his articles were crowded so full of disgusting facts and ringing sentences, that, if a prospective settler chanced to see them and needed them, he would be certain to steer clear of Smithville. When they were completed he typed them on the company's typewriter and prepared them for publication. The local editor accepted them gladly and printed the first of the series, "A Day in our Rival City," in the Sunday edition. It proved so popular that Benson City Commercial Club ordered reprint of a thousand copies to be scattered over the City and sent to people in the East who were looking Westward for homes. "A home in Smithville—Why not?" The second article, proved equally as successful and was sent East in bundles of printed slips.

The response to these was instantaneous, thousands of letters of inquiry poured into the Newspaper office and hundreds of new subscribers were added to the list. The real estate men got busy, prepared booklets descriptive of the city and for nearly two months the post office department was taxed to its fullest capacity to handle the enormous business.

By fall settlers had begun to arrive; hundreds and hundreds came, and hotels were crowded so that they could not accomodate them all. These newcomers almost invariably remained, purchased sections of land and built homes in Benson City and became citizens of the town. The prices of real estate soared higher and higher. New strikes of mines were made and miners came in shovels. Business of all kinds increased in an overwhelming manner. New stores, restaurants, hotels and shops arose; new buildings were erected by the Smelting company and a fellow from Smithville attempted to open a saloon but had to be spirited away from the town to escape the vengeance of the irate citizens. The circulation of the local paper doubled and trebled, thousands of extra dollars were paid to its editor for advertising space, and still the articles by Merlin, the scathing arraignment of Smithville, continued to be inserted weekly. He had hitherto signed his name "One who knows" but this could not long hide his identity, and soon the people "Who knew" began to talk about him and he found himself to be the most popular person in town. He did not object to this popularity because it seemed to elevate him still higher in the estimation of his employer.

One morning in early autumn he entered the office and found the elderly man very much delighted.

"What pleases you sir, Boss?" he asked good humoredly.

"That right there" pointing to a typewritten letter on the desk. Merlin made haste to read and he, in turn, smiled. It was a message from the railroad Company to the effect that owing to the sudden increase in Benson City's population and the fine moral reputation of the place they had decided to build their branch line to it instead of Smithville as they had contemplated.

"Pretty good news" he asked caustically, but with inward pride.

"Good News? Well I should say so! It means that my business is insured for good and tremendous personal profits to me and you are the cause of it all, boy! I'm going to raise your salary fifty dollars today."

"Thank you sir" courteously.

"And you must come down to the club meeting tonight, you are a new member and boy you must cultivate that talent for writing. Anybody that can influence hundred of people and a railroad company by a few short articles, ought to be able to do more with a good sized book I tell you."

And Merlin thought so too.

STORMY SESSION

Resolutions Designating Central Route Adopted; Other Meetings.

From the time Judge J. H. New- man, of Hawesville, chairman of the Ohio river route, as temporary chairman, called the meeting to- day yesterday afternoon and nomi- nations for a permanent chairman were in order, the meeting which started out to be a joint meeting of advocates of the three proposed federal aid routes, until a vote was finally won to adjourn, the conven- tion was a tempestuous one, filled with heated discussions.

Judge C. W. Wells, of this coun- ty, was named for election as chair- man, and the motion seconded by several. The chairman of the Ohio river route then offered a nomi- nation, and Judge Wells was uni- formly elected. J. Leo Fentress, of Central City, was elected secretary.

In making his opening address, well, not voting; Lyon, not repre- sented, and Livingston, not repre- sented.

Harmonious Meeting

Immediately following the adjournment of the Central route com- mittee, the Owensboro-Bowling Green route representatives held a short, harmonious meeting. Each county along the proposed route reported being ready to meet the federal department with the money.

There are three routes advocated, but apparently there will be little trouble locating the route.—Owens- boro Messenger.

ANOTHER CIVIL WAR VE- TRAN GONE TO HIS REWARD

Joseph H. Smith died at his resi- dence on main street Rockport, Ky., on the 7th day of June 1919 in his 77th year of age, he leaves one son, Joseph F. Smith, of Chicago, Ill., and two daughters, Mrs. Sallie S. White, of Shamokin, Pa., and Mrs. Ida S. Park, of Rockport, Ky., and a host of friends to lament his loss. Mr. Smith was born in Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania.

Enlisted in the Union Army in the 129th Pennsylvania Regt. Infantry, served through the war, and was promoted to Sargent for bravery and efficient service on the field of battle, after the war he moved to Kentucky and was employed as a stationery engineer at Echols, Ky. for over 40 years. He was a re- markable man in many respects, careful honest and kindly disposed. In all the years that he hoisted coal men and mules up and down a hundred foot pit, he never hurt a man or beast. He was a devoted hus- band, and a loving father and held the respect of every one that knew him. He was a faithful member of the Presbyterian church, and died in the faith. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. — Hotchkiss pastor of the Rockport Presbyterian church. The active pall bearers were World War Veterans in uniform who had just been discharged from the army, namely, Dr. C. R. Layton, John D. Ham, Ray Herrel, Travis Maples, Alva Landrum, — French and Orlett Carter.

The grave was decorated with flowers by the ladies of Rockport and an old ex-rebel planted the Stars and Stripes over the remains of one of his most highly esteemed friends. The family has the sympathy of the whole community, and especially of the writer. God rest his soul, and comfort the children and friends.

DEATH PENALTY IS PAID BY NEGROES

Eddyville, Ky.—Lewis Harris, colored, of Mason County, convicted of wife murder, and Jim Howard, of Paducah, who murdered Patrolman Romaine, in that city, were electrocuted at the State penitentiary here early this morning.

"Can you really tell anything about the future?"

"Oh, yes," said the fortune-teller. "I know, for instance, that my landlord ain't going to get his rent for next month."

After several had spoken for and against the resolution, Judge New- man called the delegates of the Ohio river route for a meeting to be held in the Rudd house. This caused a storm of protest, and finally resulted in the judge reconsidering his call, as the meeting had but a short time before been postponed until after June 18. At this jun- cture, more than half the 500 people, who were crowded in the court- room, left.

There were seventy-six delegates present from Webster county, who rent for next month."

EDITOR AND WIFE ARRESTED AT RUSSELLVILLE

Mrs. A. M. Herndon Refuses

Bail and is Jailed, But Released.

Russellville, Ky.—The greatest sensation in the history of Logan county was caused here this morning by the arrest of A. M. Herndon and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Chan- dler Herndon, on a warrant charging criminal libel.

The Herndons are editor and associate editor, respectively, of the Russellville Messenger, a weekly newspaper published in this city, and were indicted at the instance of Circuit Judge John S. Rhea by the grand jury recently adjourned.

Capt. Frank M. Logan, also one of the editors of this paper, was indicted jointly with the Herndons, but is in Lexington attending a meeting of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

The Herndons refused to give bond and were taken to jail and soon afterward admitted to bail.

On being released from jail Mrs. Herndon fainted and was taken to a room in a hotel which she was passing at the time. A physician was called and in a short while she had recovered sufficiently to be at her desk in the Messenger office.

Paper Opposed Rhea

The indictments were based on an editorial which appeared in the Messenger of May 1, in which the paper announced its purpose to oppose T. S. Rhea as a candidate for Governor, giving as one of the reasons for such opposition that Rhea had been a party to fraudulent elections in this county, and in commenting on the situation said: "We may be asked that, if it be true that the law has been violated, why we don't go into court and ask that those guilty of the violation of the law be punished."

"Our answer is that under the conditions heretofore stated, we consider the fact that the court which tries the case and the Sheriff who selects the jury, both have been elected to office by the same machine, and therefore we do not think there would be much chance of conviction. In fact, about the same chance as a worsted dog would have chasing an asbestos cat through hell."

Rhea Demands Indictment

Circuit Judge John S. Rhea is a brother of T. S. Rhea, who withdrew from the race for Governor, it is said, on account of the newspaper attack above mentioned, and other opposition in his home coun- ty.

Judge Rhea called the grand jury together and charged them es- pecially with reference to the publication mentioned, stating that they must indict either the officers of the court or the editors of the paper.

It is said also that when the in- dictment was not immediately forth coming he went before the grand jury in person and insisted upon the return of the indictment.

The jailing of Mrs. Herndon es- pecially has aroused public senti- ment here as nothing has ever done.

She is universally popular, is a daughter of the late Rev. James S. Chandler and a sister of the Rev. J. A. Chandler, pastor of Lander Memorial church, Louisville.

She is prominent in club circles and is an officer of the Grand Chap- ter, Order of the Eastern Star.

She was locked in the dirty jail and was compelled to stand during the time she was there, as there was no chair or other furniture upon which she might sit down. It was exhaustion that caused her to faint when she left the jail.

What may develop in the next day or two is uncertain. The at- mosphere is surcharged with ex- citement.

Resolution Proposes That Conference Redraft Document

Washington.—Through a resolution offered by Senator Knox, mem- ber of the Foreign Relations Com- mittee, in the Senate to-day, the initial move was taken in an effort by opponents of the League of Na- tions covenant to separate it from the treaty of peace.

It embraces an attempt to have this done through action by the Paris conference by redrafting the covenant so as to make it optional with nations to join now, or later on.

Under the Knox resolution, na- tions not wanting to become mem- bers of the League of Nations at this time could have their interests, so far as affected by the league cov- enant, put into the hands of diplo-by Mr. L. T. Riley in defense of the dance given at Hartford last week. We were not present at this dance and know nothing about it, but as stated elsewhere is the issue, we are opposed to dancing in any form. However, we wish to be perfectly fair with those whoseviews differ from ours and our columns are open to articles by those who engage in such. But be it known that The Herald, under its present administration at least, is opposed to public dances as social gatherings.The dance craze which seems to have struck Ohio County with full force should command the serious consideration of the people, as to its moral effects. While we are opposed to dancing in any form, it is not within our province to dictate;

but even though it should be a delightful form of recreation—in which we fail to find the delight—it can be carried to extremes and we believe it is going to an extreme in this county.The Armenian-Syrian Relief Drive is making good progress. We believe the County will go over its quota. Then we must not forget the Salvation Army Drive which begins immediately and will run into July. All the boys who have come back from overseas have only highest praise for the Salvation Army and its work in the war theatre.We all know its good work in the cities here. There could be no more worthy enterprise for us to support than the Salvation army.
The quota is comparatively small and we feel sure Ohio County will do her share by the girls who stood the shot and shell to bring comforts to the boys.From indications it would appear that Ohio County will soon be intersected with a system of Federal highways that would do credit to any county. Besides the Owensboro-Bowling Green route, there is probability of a road running from Dawson Springs to Louisville, passing through Ohio County near Fordsville. Then there is another road in prospect, traversing the county from Grayson County, passing near Arnold and Horse Branch, on to Cromwell. If these roads are built the county will be laid open, with all its possibilities, to the rest of the state and the people will realize great good from outside investments.Rotten politics is evidently being played in Logan county. We do not know the facts other than it appears on the surface that political coercion is being used to interfere with the decrees of the grand jury. This is in a Democratic county and the parties accused are Democrats; but we are not so narrow as to refuse publicity to the facts as they appear, no matter which party is in power. If it were only in Democratic counties that machine politics rode dominant it would establish a criterion of which we would be utterly ashamed as we are anyway, but not to the extent of heaping all the coals on the back of the Democratic party. We have seen machine politics played in other counties, Republican counties, of which our own is no exception. There is little difference in a grand jury rendering an indictment where it is not deserved and refusing to render one where it is deserved. Though neither party be guilty, justice demands full compliance with the facts in the case.The Federal Amendment, giving the women the right to vote in all the nation, has passed. It requires only its ratification to make it a law. Then down goes the pedestal upon which the ages have seated woman and crowned her with the halo of adoration! It may be, we of the south are too conservative;
that we fail to keep abreast of the tides of progress. But whatever accusation may be brought against us, we feel that woman, with whom man is as incomparable as the rough sunflower is with the rose, loses her high estate of honor and idealization when she leaves her home for the polls. Henceforth she must buffet with men in the marts of trade; rub elbows with the colored man at the election; descend to the low level of the newly naturalized alien and worst of all be made a tool and victim of intriguing politicians. Not that woman is not good enough to vote; on the other hand, she is too pure and unsophis-ticated to be brought into politics.
So long the idol of the world, she will lose that lavender-like grace of sentiment with which time has enshrouded her. We trust woman suffrage will be a success, but leave the decision to the future.The Holy Rollers are carrying on a whirlwind campaign at Horse Branch. While we do not concur with their doctrines of instantaneous divine healing and refusal to accept medical aid and other tenets which are the results of ultra-enthusiasm, nevertheless it cannot be denied that they have accomplished much good in many places in getting under the hide of many an old moss-back hypocrite and rooting out some of the poison of sin. If their doctrines of right living could be propagated more broadly we would have no need for the fanaticism that makes their doctrines disgusting, namely the wriggling, writting, bodily contortions which are practised at some services. We do not need Christian tolerance in the world; we need Christian love.
Love does not know tolerance. It feeds on the fires of forgiveness and does not consider other beliefs in the spirit which demands aloof-ness and scornful tolerance. If we all get together in the spirit of love we will need no power of tongues to convince us that we are God's children, for the Apostle says, "I know I am passed from death unto life, because I love the brethren."The dance craze which seems to force should command the serious

consideration of the people, as to its
moral effects. While we are op-

marks that are a discredit and slander to the people who have been attending these entertainments, and I am now demanding an explanation and apology in public, as a criticism was made, and I hope to see it done in the next issue.I want to say from my own standpoint and views that all these entertainments that have been given in Hartford have been of the highest type of social gatherings; attended by the best people and conducted by the best rules and manners. All of these have been given for the purpose of helping the social standing, and to broaden our acquaintance and, for the social uplift of the community. I had thought and know that they had been a success, and to think that the paper that is supposed to be for the uplift and broader acquaintance of our town and county, should make such remarks concerning such an entertainment is a shock and surprise to me, and I for one, and I think I speak for the public community, demand that he make an apology at once about this matter.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS

The Ohio County Teachers' Institute will convene at the College Hall, Hartford, Ky., July 7th and continue five days.Every teacher holding a certificate, or any one who expects to take the examination in September with the intention of teaching, must attend the entire session of this institute.The daily program, found in the syllabus on page 51 will be on guide. Every teacher should himself in readiness to respond on any subject. A special invitation is extended to the public to attend on Wednesday since we expect an address from our State Superintendent, V. O. Gilbert Professor Frank
L. McVey, President of State University,
Mr. Kercher, of Lexington, Ky., and Prof. H. H. Cherry, Bowling Green, Kentucky.The influenza having broken in to our schools last fall caused the county to have such a small number of Common School Graduates that we have abandoned the idea of the accustomed graduation exercises within Institute week.

War's Influence on Music.

Have you noticed what a "speeding up" of music has come out of this war? There has been so much music in it. When the famous retreat from Mons was made, one set of soldiers was kept awake and moving one night by the music of a little toy fife and child's drum, which the commander of it bought in a kind of desperation in a shop shortly before. The music acted like a charm on the men, who began to move more quickly and more easily as soon as they heard it. A battalion marching without singing is unusual in this war, unless secrecy of movement is called for. "There's a Long, Long Trail" is a favorite song, but dear old
"Tipperary" is not sung much now.
Little French boys sing it well, though,
and sing it a great deal. "Mother Ma-chree" is sung still, because it has so much of the old home feeling in it.
Whenever a wounded soldier in the hospital says he wants to hear a phonograph, it is taken to mean that he is getting better. And the very sick soldiers, when they hear sweet music played in their wards in hospitals, are soothed and calmed by it.LEGION FILES
ITS ARTICLESState Veterans' Body Receives Charter; Movement Is Formally LaunchedLouisville, Ky., June 8—(Special)—
With the filing in this city of Articles of Incorporation of The American Legion of Kentucky, the first formal step in the formation of a great association of veterans of the world war in this state was taken. At the same time, Judge Henry DeHaven Moorman, Temporary Commander, following a meeting of the State Executive Committee, announces that Kentucky has received its charter from the National Executive Committee of The American Legion and that the state body is now in a position to receive applications and to issue charters to local posts whenever they are formed.
Reports received by State Adjutant D. A. Sachs indicate that applications shortly will be received from various counties in which veterans are anxious to become charter members of the first posts organized. Enlisted men are taking a lead in the organization work.As the various local organizations, formed at Commander Moorman's behest, are awaiting detailed information before actually forming posts, Judge Moorman announces that a pamphlet, containing the Articles of Incorporation,
State Constitution and By-Laws, and organization directions generally, outlining all steps necessary and giving all available information of the Legion, is now being prepared and will be promptly distributed to all district and county organizers and veterans belonging to the temporary organizations, or to any other veterans on request. However, the formation of posts will not necessarily await this information, as any fifteen veterans, eligible to membership under the constitution adopted at the St. Louis National Caucus last month, may band themselves together by signing the approved form and thereby apply to the Temporary Commander for a Charter, to be issued under special authority received yesterday from the National Commander. It is desired, according to leaders here, that sixty per cent of the members be former enlisted men.Filing of the Articles of Incorporation elicited much favorable comment in this part of the state, as the articles embody the broad statement of politics embraced in the preamble to the National Constitution. One of the striking clauses in this preamble is "to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism," a declaration which is backed up by the stirring action taken at St. Louis when alleged
I. W. W. representatives narrowly escaped being thrown bodily from the convention hall. Another is "to make right the master of might."One of the incorporators is a former Brigadier-General Roger D. Williams of Lexington. Another is Moses L.
Soskin, of Louisville, who was private and who, at the age of 37 volunteered, went to France and came home with a wound stripe. All branches of both the military and naval service are represented among the incorporators and those associated with them,
whether they served at home or abroad.
An Advisory Committee for each Congressional District will hereafter be appointed by the Commander.The State Commander has expressed his desire to proceed slowly and carefully in its organization, and this no doubt will give the judgment of its members and associates.

Apple Crop Is Larger.

The United States commercial apple crop for 1918 will exceed the 1917 production by approximately 9 per cent, according to the November forecast by the bureau of crop estimates,
United States department of agriculture.
Production for this year is now estimated at 25,008,000 barrels, with 22,519,000 barrels in 1917. Attention is called to the fact that the barrelled and bulk apple production is estimated at a 31 per cent increase over last year, while the 1918 boxed apple crop will fall short of last year's production by 22 per cent. However, the latter deficiency is more than offset by the increase in the Eastern states.

Poor Widow Gives Mite.

They were only four sacks, washed and pieced together by patient fingers and then fashioned into undergarments.
Around the neck of each was a crocheted edge made from the string with which the sacks had been sewed. A poorly dressed woman brought them into the department of refuge clothing of the Red Cross as her "widow's mite.""It isn't much," she said, as she un-did the bundle, "but it is all I had, and I hope it will be of use to some Belgian woman who may have less than I have."

Artificial Rubber.

Artificial rubber has been made in an experimental way for many years, but it is now reported that it has become a practical success, and that the great dye and color works at Elberfeld, Germany, are erecting a large factory for the production of synthetic rubber on a large scale, principally intended to supply Germany with this product in future years, when great difficulties are anticipated in obtaining natural rubber, like other raw materials, from the tropics.

THE NATIONAL SUMMER SUIT FOR MEN

No need to feel like "the last rose of summer" in the Garden of Misery, just because the day is sultry or scorching.

Beat the heat in a "Keep-Kool" Summer Suit of Palm Beach Cloth or "Kool-Krash." It sheds every needless ounce of weight, but retains every useful ounce of style.

Natives of Rimatara Ascribe Their Escape From Death to Miraculous Interposition.

"Saved by the hand of God," is the way the nine natives composing the crew of the 80-ton schooner Oromana characterize their escape from death, after having drifted helplessly 50 days on one of the loneliest bits of ocean in the seven seas.

When the wreck of the Oromana was towed into Papeete harbor, Tahiti, one of the most remarkable voyages known in these waters was completed. The vessel, a two-masted schooner, owned by natives of Rimatara, an island about 300 miles southwest of Tahiti, left her home port, without cargo, bound for the island of Rurutu, in the same group, where she was to undergo repairs and take cargo of copra for Tahiti.

Two days out, she was struck by a storm, which carried away both her masts and later her rudder, leaving her a helpless derelict.

With never a glimpse of land or sail to give a ray of hope, the Oromana drifted for 50 days. After 15 days the supply of food was gone. The natives managed to catch a shark with hook and line. This lasted them five days. The rest of the time they had no food. An occasional shower prevented death from thirst.

Then the "miracle" happened. The mountains of Tahiti rose slowly over the horizon. The shifting sea current brought them nearer and nearer until they were finally sighted from shore and a powerboat sent to tow them in. They were too weak to rise to their feet, but, after a few days ashore all appeared to be rapidly recovering from their experience.

The natives say the hand of God guided their craft, for the prevailing winds in these latitudes are from the northwest, a direction which would never have brought them to Tahiti.

SHE KNEW THE GREAT STORY

Girl Lacked Gift of Narrative, but Was Able to Tell All About Chateau Thierry.

As we crawled up a railroad track in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry (this was in October)—a railroad track which seemed the only new and complete object in sight—the Y. M. C. A. girl, who had been sitting in the corner of the compartment resisting all advances at conversation, volunteered a remark.

"Our division took it," she said.

It turned out that she had gone in with her canteen just behind the division, during that fight wherein America made good. She lacked the narrative talent, that girl, but she came out at intervals with flashes like this:

"When our boys came up the strangers said to them: 'You can't stay in there!' And our boys said: 'We'll not only stay there, but we're going forward.' When the strangers saw that, they formed, too, and went back with them."

Or this, as we drew into sight of a road bordered by blackened ruins:

"There's where our divisions came into sight, singing, 'The Yanks Are Coming'—Will Irwin in the Saturday Evening Post.

Pretty Polly.

"Polly, want a cracker?" "Why, yes," answered Poll as she plumed her plumage and neatly brushed out her cage with her port-side wing. "Now that the war is won and the necessity for food conservation has been reduced to a certain degree, I feel that I may indulge in my favorite dish without serious damage to my conscience."

And the wealthy munitions worker who overheard the remark bought her on the spot for $1,000 cash, saying that she should be surrounded with luxuries for the rest of her days, yea though she lived to be as old as the mother-in-law joke.

Note—Gentle readers who look for a moral to this particular piece of patriotic persiflage will please try to bear up under the disappointment. There ain't none.—Indianapolis Star.

Matter of Patches.

Seven-year-old James and his mother were visiting the latter's spinster aunts. As was their custom these maiden ladies showed their visitors their vast supply of home-pieced quilts. "This is the first four-patch Jane ever made," announced one proudly, displaying a quilt whose blocks were made up of four square pieces.

"And this is Mary's nine-patch," explained Jane. "She made it when she was only seven years old."

The third quilt was an embroidered silk one, made of myriads of tiny irregular pieces—the gifts of friends and the remnants from ancient wedding and reception clothes. James stared at it a few minutes and then he turned to his mother. "Is this one an all-patch?" he asked.

Round Trip.

Aunt Mary Wells is one of the few "befo' de wah" darkies left in a little Kentucky town. Recently she was discussing with her employer the merry-go-round that was running up on the corner.

"Nawsuh, Mr. Malcolm," she said, "nawsuh, I don't ride on none o' dem things. Why, Mr. Malcolm, I've seen some o' these here fool niggers git on that thing and ride as much as a dollar's worth, and git off at the very same place they gits on at; an' I sez to 'em, 'Now you spent yo' money, nigger, whah yo' been?'—Saturday Evening Post.

Almost Unendurable Trutona

Changed Her

Louisville, Ky., June, 17.—Mrs. Lana Guinn, a well known Louisville woman of 2514 Woodlawn avenue, has recently recovered from an illness of long duration through use of Trutona.

"I suffered from nervous indigestion, constipation and loss of appetite for a long time," she said. "I was so nervous at times that it was difficult for me to tolerate the presence of my husband or others in the house. I couldn't sleep and would often just wonder around the house at night. I never felt like doing even the simplest of my household duties."

"Lost two front teeth in a lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent."

"Donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to county barbecues. Gave away two pairs of suspenders, four calico dresses, $5 in cash and 15 baby rattlers."

"Kissed 126 babies."

"Put up four stoves."

"Kindled 14 fires."

"Walked 4,075 miles."

"Shook hands with 9,508 people."

"Told 10,101 lies and talked enough to make in print 1,000 volumes; attended 16 revivals and was baptized four different times by immersion and twice some other way."

"Contributed $50 to foreign missions and made love to nine widows—five grass, four sod."

"Hugged 49 old maids."

"Got dog bit 39 times and was elected by 353 majority."

HISTORICAL DRIVE

June is HISTORICAL MONTH in Kentucky. Every county in the State is now engaged in making a permanent record of the part it played in the World War.

The records of the soldiers are being made on WAR RECORD SHEETS. The records of the civilians are being made in the form of reports of the work done by the County Council of Defense, Red Cross Chapters, Liberty Loan Campaign Committees, Women's Clubs and other organizations which took a part in winning the war.

When these records are completed they will be bound in permanent form and placed in the archives of the county.

The Kentucky Council of Defense inaugurated this work in September, 1918, by appointing State and County Historians. These historians are engaged in the laborious task of compiling complete lists of the men who have lost their lives, those who have been wounded and those who have won special honors. They are also making a complete roster of all men in the service. A special effort is being made to get a complete list of the volunteers, and those who have been for a long time in the regular army. The Historian for this county is Miss Lettie Marks, Hartford, Ky., she needs your help.

Every person who has a relative in the service should make it a personal duty to see that a War Record blank is filled for such person and handed to the County Historian. These blanks may be obtained from the County Historian.

KILLING OF GIRL IS YET MYSTERY

Indianapolis, Ind.—With the failure of John Gulley, soldier lover of murdered Minnie Maye Wilkins, to appear and deny the assertion that he was the girl's slayer, police to-day were as far as ever from solution of the mysterious killing.

George Kessler is still held as a suspect, but the police are refraining from pushing charges against him since he stoutly declared that Gulley, his comrade in the 10th United States Infantry, was guilty of the crime. Gulley has not put in his appearance to refute the charges and unless he appears police admit there will be a loophole in the web of circumstantial evidence they have been weaving around Kessler.

It developed to-day that the murderer used the utmost precision. On the lid of the cistern in which her body was found, there sat an old basket filled with growing lettuce. This basket was replaced in the exact spot and the handles were in the same position.

Hours in a lonely cell and hours of questioning failed to save Kessler in the stink that he is innocent. He is under a $20,000 bond. Gulley is said to be staying near Camp Custer, Mich.

Mrs. Maud Bennett, mother-in-law of Kessler, declared to-day that Kessler was innocent. She had helped the police trail him from this city to Chicago. Milwaukee and back here again.

A sign that a Regiment cheered

Just a painted sign on the wall of an ancient building in France! "Not much of a thrill in that," you'll say

YEAT a regiment of American soldiers, dog-weary from a long hike, dripping wet from an all-day downpour, broke into cheers at sight of it. You'd have thought they had come unexpectedly on a Statue of Liberty in Brest

That sign represented "God's country"—a glimpse of home that had gone across the sea to meet them

When Hart Schaffner & Marx placed their signs in the prominent locations in Brest, Bordeaux, St. Nazaire, Nantes, and the other ports of embarkation in France, they hoped the signs would be more than merely messages that let the boys know they'd find Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes—stylish, all wool, guaranteed—ready for them when they got home

The fighting men did see them as more than advertisements too; they gave the boys a little glimpse of "back home" that cheered them on. Hart Schaffner & Marx say that if those signs don't do one other thing than that, they're more than repaid
